

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of producing a polarizing plate, including the step of laminating a pair of curled protective sheets onto opposite surfaces of a polarizer respectively so that respective 5 curling directions of the pair of curled protective sheets are reverse to each other, wherein the laminating index of the pair of protective sheets is selected to be not higher than 60 in order to restrain the polarizing plate from being curled.